

PORTLAND'S SUSTAINABILITY

SERIES

Conservation and Kegs: How Keeping Land Green is Good for Maine Breweries

Please join us to learn more about the role of land conservation in water quality and its impact on our local beer economy. Paul Hunt and Laurel Jackson of the Portland Water District will present information on our drinking water source, Sebago Lake, where they'll speak about their new initiative to protect the land around the lake.

Luke Truman of Allagash Brewing Company and Nathan Sanborn of Rising Tide Brewing Company will speak about the beer making process, how they use the water in their processes, and how the quality of Portland water impacts their product and their business. Discussion and Q&A follows the event.

Wednesday, Sept. 27 | 6:00-7:30pm
Rines Auditorium | Main Library

There will be a beer tasting after the event for attendees 21+.

southern maine
CONSERVATION
COLLABORATIVE

ALLAGASH
BREWING COMPANY

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
FMI, CALL 871-1700 EXT. 729 OR EMAIL
GRAY@PORTLANDPUBLICLIBRARY.ORG

PORTLAND
PUBLIC LIBRARY
Building a City of Readers